competitors. They try to allure you with insipid literary productions, and then make you pay the price they wish. With tears in their eyes and lamentations on their lips they tell you that goods have advanced, and beg you to pay the difference. We reason with naked facts that can not be contradicted. No sign of advance in prices in our store. We do not ask you to pay any difference. Our motto is—"Less Profit and More Business." We have been thriving and prospering through it, and so have our customers through the savings on their purchases made in our house. That is the cause why our store is popularly known as the "Crowded Corner." Every thing stylish, new and up-to-date is to be found here, and at a price very much lower than elsewhere. As proof, we quote the following
